Years of experience

We design, manufacture and market electrical control equipment and switchgear, this has formed the basis of the company's continuing success and expansion into markets around the world.

Craig & Derricott was incorporated in 1944 and commenced manufacture in the royal borough of Sutton Coldfield. The company soon outgrew the original premises and in the 1970's the business moved to its current site at Walsall Wood in the industrial Midlands.

Initially rotary selector switches formed the bulk of the company's production which was soon augmented by a range of heavy duty pushbutton components and a wide selection of various limit switch formats.

The company's product range is constantly evolving with new products and continuous improvements to the existing ranges being launched.

The company's operations are monitored to ISO 9001 : 2008.
